PECK WILL FLY AT BALL PARK

Daring Young Aviator Will Not be at Fair Grounds as Was Previously Announced.

LIBERTY WILL PLAY LOCALS

Double Attraction Wednesday at the South Main Street Grounds Expected to Attract Crowd.

Plans for the aeroplane flight here Wednesday by Col. Paul Peck have been changed and instead of flying at the fair grounds he will use the base ball park. This arrangement was made yesterday by the merchants in charge of the affair. It is thought the ball park will prove a better place than the fair grounds for the flight for more reasons than one.

The ball park is close to the city and is a more suitable place. Peck will fly from Connersville and will come directly to the ball grounds. He will aim to land at the grounds at the conclusion of the ball game. Manager Maibaugh was unable to secure the Maxwell-Brisco team and has booked the Liberty team. The Liberty team is a fast one and the crowd is assured of a fine game while awaiting the arrival of Col. Peck and his Columbia biplane. Robinson, who pitched here for Lebanon several weeks ago has been secured to pitch for the locals and the rest of the line up will be as usual.

The game will be called at two o'clock in order to insure its completion before the arrival of Peck. The double attraction is expected to draw a large crowd. One admission will entitle the holder to both ball game and aviation meet.

Col. Paul Peck, the famous young aviator who will fly here at the ball park Wednesday has had some narrow escapes from death while flying. While flying in Cincinnati on July 21 his machine ran out of gasoline 1000 feet in the air. The Cincinnati Commercial Tribune of July 22 has the following to say about this sensational flight of Aviator Paul Peck:

"Colonel Paul Peck, whose feats in the air for the past two weeks has astounded thousands of spectators, closed his engagement at Coney Island yesterday in the presence of an unusually crowd. Yesterday Peck made the most daring flight of his engagement here. He faced conditions wholly unfavorable to a birdman. A choppy wind prevailed at all times and his undertaking was a most hazardous one. At 5 o'clock Colonel Peck, after a conference with his managers, decided to make the flight.

"It was the second of these, in which he flew to California, Ohio, with the last pouch of mail to be dispatched from Coney Island to that point, that he came near meeting with a serious accident. The daring young wizard of the air, upon his return from the mail-carrying trip, essayed to do some fancy stunts around the field at a great height. While 1000 feet in the air his supply of gasoline gave out, and the aviator set himself for a safe glide to the ground. When nearing the field, he saw that to attempt to make a landing would surely result with accident, and coming close to the grand stand he turned his machine about and glided back in the direction he had come from. In this attempt to avert accident to himself and machine, he came near striking a barn in a cornfield just outside of the aviation field.

"The machine landed safely in the cornfield a few yards beyond. After he had received another supply of gasoline the young air-man arose from the cornfield into the air and flew back to the aviation field where his coming was the signal for a rousing cheer.

"The meet just closed was a success in every sense of the word, and the many thousands of people that saw Peck fly were loud in their praise of the daring young air-man, who grew to be such a favorite that it is with much regret that Cincinnatians see him leave this city."

WATSON SPEAKS TO CROWD OF 5,000

Former Congressman Opens Republican Campaign in Indiana With Speech at Nashville.

WILSON IS NOT QUALIFIED

According to a dispatch in the Indianapolis Star, James E. Watson of this city addressed a crowd of five thousand people at the Republican rally and Brown county convention at Nashville, the county seat Saturay afternoon. The business of nominating the Brown county ticket required but a short time, after which Mr. Watson delivered the first Republican speech of the campaign in Indiana. A number of prominent Republicans from adjoining counties attended the meeting.

The dispatch says in part:

The Republican campaign of 1912 opened in Brown Saturday with one of the largest gatherings in the history of the county. James E. Watson of Rushville, the principal speaker, denounced Roosevelt, saying he wanted to be the whole party and did not stand on the principles of the party and was no longer considered as a Republican. He scored Wilson, saying he was not qualified to act as President of the United States.

CITY PARK TO BE MECCA THIS YEAR

Most Family Reunions Will be Held There Instead of at Fair Grounds.

SOME DATES ARE ANNOUNCED

That the city park is to be the mecca for family reunionists this year, instead of the fair grounds, is indicated by the early announcements of family reunions to be held next month, the most accepted time for family reunions. Indications are that about as many family reunions as usual will be held here this year.

The two largest ones which convene here, the Mauzy and Newhouse reunions, will be held at the city park this year. The date for the Mauzy reunion has not been set, but the Newhouse reunion will be held Thursday, August fifteenth. Both of these reunions bring people here from all parts of Indiana, and a few from adjoining States.

A number of reunions in which local people are interested are to be held in Indianapolis. The annual Matlock family reunion will be held at Brookside park next Sunday. S. H. Matlock is president and Mrs. Harry Matlock is secretary of the organization.

FINDS POLITICS PROFITABLE.

DECIDE FUTURE OF ASSOCIATION

Merchants Will Meet Tonight to Determine Whether Organization Shall Disband.

FAVOR OF COMMERCIAL CLUB

Suggestion That Change be Made Meets With Approval of many Business Men.

The meeting of the Retail Merchants Association to decide whether or not the organization shall give way to a commercial club in which all the city's interests will participate will be held in the court house this evening.

As the future of Rushville is at stake to a certain extent, it is urged that mmbers of th association derail all former engagements and attend this meeting. Several business men have expressed their opinion as favorable to this move for the betterment of the city's welfare, and indications are that a number will be present to give their views on the new trend of affairs of the commercial interests of the city have taken.

It is declared by many business men that a commercial body to step in the tracks of the Retail Merchants Association is a happy idea and one that should be carried out by all means. Since the business men have lost interest in the Merchants Association and those who are in earnest have failed to arouse any interest in the old association, it is advocated that something should be done before the association actually goes defunct and leaves the city without any commercial body at all.

The idea that the Merchants Association should gracefully withdraw in favor of a commercial club in which all business men could participate was suggested at the regular meeting last week. The failure of many of the members to attend the meetings and take an active part in the business of the association was the subject of comment and led to the suggestion that the question be put directly to the members whether they wish to perpetuate the old organization or disband in favor of a commercial club.

COLT STRANGLED TO DEATH

Valuable Animal Got Tangled in Rope Swing.

A valuable two-year-old colt belonging to William Price was killed yesterday in a peculiar manner. The animal was pastured in a woods on the John Gartin farm northeast of the city and became entangled in the rope of a swing, choking to death. The rope on the swing had been thrown up over the tree so as to keep any stock from being injured but the wind blew it down. The rope was wrapped around the horse's neck several times and it had been dead several hours when found.

TRIED 'EM ALL.

Newcastle Times: The editor of the Middletown News takes a two-column editorial in Friday's issue to tell that he has not made up his mind whether to be for Taft or Teddy—whether to take his straight or mixed. Why this hesitancy? Bro. Inman in his political life has fluttered from flower to bush so that a little change like the present should be of small moment. Having seen all the other parties from the inside, he might as well get into the Bull Moose and look out.

"WHAT MUST I DO TO BE LOST?"

The Rev. C. M. Yocum Answers the Question in Sermon Topic at Union Service.

"DO NOTHING" IS HIS REPLY

He Scouts Some of the Commonest of Common Excuses Offered by Man.

"What Must I Do To Be Lost?" was the question subject of the Rev. C. M. Yocum's sermon at the union service at the Coliseum last evening.

"Do nothing," was his answer to his own question.

The Rev. Mr. Yocum pointed out that many sermons had been preached on the opposite text, "What Shall I Do To Be Saved?" but very few on the subject which he had selected.

The minister related the parable of Christ and pointed out that the men who were lost were not liars, thieves and murderers, but were all respectable citizens. They did nothing, he said, but just simply refused to accept the invitation and do the thing required to be saved.

"Usually such a man," continued the Rev. Mr. Yocum, "will make a common excuse. A man states a reason when he states the grounds upon which he stands for doing or not doing a thing. A reason is something substantial while an excuse is a pretense at a reason. An excuse is saying something to get out of something else."

"If there is a heaven, you want it. If you want it there is only one way to get it. Be a christian." Such was the terse way in which the minister disposed of the common excuses made by man in refusing to accept Christ. He pointed out that a man must have an excuse else he would be a Christian, and that to be almost saved is to be lost all together.

"I am trying to be good," is the most common of all common excuses, the minister said. But what if you are trying to be good? the minister asked, everyone is expected to be good because the laws of man say you shall. If a man is trying to be good, he asserted, he must be obedient because sin is a transgression of the law.

The Rev. Mr. Yocum said one who is offering excuses says he might not hold out. If he can not, he should never begin, the minister said, and if he once begins, he has a chance, Mr. Yocum added. He illustrated by showing the same principle applied where a man would refuse to get into a life boat, even though he were drowning, because he feared it would sink.

"I am not willing to give up," is an excuse which is not often heard, the Rev. Mr. Yocum said.

"I am not good enough," a proverbial excuse, is a good reason for accepting Christ's invitation, the minister said. No one is good enough, he said, and he admonished those with this excuse to do the best they can.

"I want to wait," is the most common of all excuses offered the Rev. Mr. Yocum declared. "The day passes, the night comes," he said, "and life is but a candle, a breath. And yet you say you want to wait. The Irishman says we will all die if we live long enough, and therein is the answer to this excuse.

"Death may come any day, we know not when. Belong to Christ and live always. You hve resorted to this excuse when some Christian interested in your future life has talked with you, how long have you been waiting? Do you ever consider what an enormous [illegible] that is being done on the uncertainty of life?

The crowd last night was the largest of any one of the series of union meetings. The number of people present was estimated at two thousand. Miss Florence Frazee and her brother of Lexington, Ky., sang a duet.

AWARD CONTRACT FOR LEISURE PIKE

Commissioners Let Building of the Township Line Road to W. H. Robbins For $10,090.

REVIEW BOARD WORK TO STAND

The board of commissioners were in session Saturday afternoon long enough to award the contract for the Charles Leisure gravel road. The road is the line pike between Ripley and Posey townships. The contract was awarded to W. H. Robbins of Posey township for $10,090. The work is to start at once. Bids for a bridge in Ripley township had been advertised to be received Saturday, but none were received.

Auditor Stone has received a statement from the State Board of Tax Commissioners that the Rush county assessment as returned by the board of reviews would stand.

GETS ON COUNTY TICKET

W. R. Covertson Nominated For Representative at Goshen.

W. R. Coverston, formerly of this city, was nominated as Democratic candidate for State representative of Elkhart county at the Democratic county convention at Goshen last Saturday afternoon. Mr. Coverston was Big Four agent here for six or seven years, leaving here about five years ago to accept the Big Four agency at Goshen. Mr. Coverston has a lot of friends here who are glad to hear of his political preferment.

TO BE IN HERSEY STABLE

Ess H. Kay, 2:00¾, to be Raced by Well Known Driver.

Ess H. Kay, 2:00¾, now in the stud at Posey Stock Farm, will be added to the Hersey stable the latter part of this month. He has been getting his work over the farm half-mile track, is in fine condition, and will get his finishing touches for a fall campaign in the hands of trainer Hersey. The fast stallion was brought here by Fred Dagler last winter, and he has had a highly successful season.

LOOK WHO'S GONE.

WALDORFS SLIP OVER VICTORY

Fast Richmond Team Takes Locals Into Camp by 3 to 2 Score.

TIE UP GAME IN EIGHTH FRAME

Avery Lets Visitors Down Without Hit or Run For Seven Innings—Tough One to Lose.

Holding the Richmond Waldorfs without a hit or a run for seven innings, then losing by a 3 to 2 score is the luck Rushville had yesterday. It was by far the best game played here this season and while Rushville has no excuses to offer a few explanations, however, are in order.

To begin with Fred Chance is no third baseman. The whole world knows that and Chance will vouch for it himself. He is an outfielder and came here to play right field. Yesterday was the first time he ever attempted to play third and then he went in only after Mahager Maibaugh had a full understanding of the situation. Murray failed to show up and Chance was urged to try the third base job. Even though he didn't prove a world beater the "chances" are he performed as good as any of the available material that Maibaugh had for the position. This explains Chance's situation.

But to get back to the game. Avery and Mull pitched grand ball. Richmond made their three bingles off Avery in the eighth inning. The locals were let down with two hits by Mull. The game at the finish was one of those heart breaking kind and was not won until the last man was down. Up until the eighth the locals led by a two to nothing score and the game looked pretty safe. Avery was going good and the fans had a vision of another no hit, no run contest. But it was only a vision for the very next inning Avry got bumped for three hits, netting two runs.

The two runs tied the score and it looked like the game would go into extra innings. But even this was blasted as Richmond slipped over the big run in the ninth. The locals were helpless before Mull and their two hits were scattered—one in the first and the other in the seventh. Neither of the two hits figured in the run getting. The first run came as a result of being hit by the pitcher and the other from a base on balls.

Chance got around for Rushville in the first inning. Carter struck. Chance was hit by the pitcher. Halterman hit safe, Chance taking third on the play. Cook was safe on a missed third strike. With the bases filled and one down, Thomas sacrificed, Chance scoring. Geraghty was out Mull to Lucas. Chance made the other run for Rushville in the sixth. He was the first man up and drew a base on balls. Halterman sacrificed and Cook hit into the first baseman's hands, Chance scoring. Thomas flew out to Niebuhr.

Everything was breaking nicely for the locals and not a sign of a hit was made off Avery until the first of the eighth, when the play house was shoved over. Mull, the first man up flew out to Cook. Denny received the honor of getting the first hit for Richmond. He poled out a single to right. Hartman went Denny one better and poled a two bagger to right field. Scott misjudged the ball or it would have been an easy out. Nicodemus laid a bunt down the third base line. Both Anderson and Chance thought the ball foul and it was not fielded. As a result Denny scored. Nicodemus tried to steal second with Hartman on Third and was caught. Anderson [illegible] on Cook to make a quick return on the unexpected

LOST WAGES OF CRIME GAMBLING

Further Light On Movements of Rosenthal's Murderers.

BURNS MEN GETTING RESULTS

It Now Appears That the Five Men Who Pistolled Police Informer Went to Far Rockaway, Where They Quickly Lost the Proceeds of Their Bloody Business in Gambling and Then Slunk Back to New York.

New York, July 29.—In a report that the five men who shot down the gambler and informer walked straight from the Metropole to a red automobile waiting near Eighth avenue and Forty-third street, drove to Far Rockaway and lost the price of the murder, $5,000, in a few days gambling in a house kept by Jack Rose himself, the first results of the investigation by Burns detectives of the murder of Herman Rosenthal have been flashed to the district attorney.

There is positive ground for the statement that District Attorney Whitman bases, upon the preliminary reports received from Burns agents, his belief that the police have only a muddled and confused knowledge of the details of the killing and of the retreat of the assassins, and that there now is reason to believe that some of the murderers did not escape in the gray car driven by Shapiro.

The quiet work of the Burns detectives has indicated that the five gangmen who pistolled Rosenthal were at Far Rockaway until a few days ago; that they received daily news of the hue and cry while they gaily flung upon the roulette table the proceeds of their crime, and that when luckless play and hard drinking had emptied their pockets, they sneaked one by one back to town and went into hiding. How much of this, if any, is known to Deputy Commissioner Dougherty has not escaped from that official. But Mr. Dougherty has been spending much time in driving his fast red car along the beaches and questioning men who are confidants and go-betweens for the criminals who drift between Manhattan and the seashore.

The story that proceeds from the Burns agents has placed a new name on the list of the assassins, Kitty Second, rascal of East Side haunts, one down in the police books as a pickpocket and devoted to satchel thieving, hotel prowling and whatever cunning criminality would fill his pockets. The names of the others are the names of the four whom Dougherty has advertised as the actual murderers, Gib the Blood, Whitey Lewis, Dago Frank and Lefty Louie. The information of the district attorney is that Lefty Louie, Whitey Lewis and Gib the Blood were the three that crept close to Rosenthal when he appeared unsuspectingly on the threshhold of the Metropole hotel, and that fired the shots while Kitty Second and Dago Frank flanked the murderers with drawn pistols, ready to shoot down any man that interfered with the killing.

MEXICAN WAR

Federal Forces Adopt a New Plan of Campaign.

El Paso, Tex., July 29.—The northern Mexico campaign against the rebels will hereafter be carried on by General Trucy Aubert, an intrepid cavalry commander, in place of General Victoriano Huerta, who made such a military fizzle of the attempt to trap and capture Orozco's army at Bachimba. Aubert is planning to fight the rebels in the same fashion that they have decided to fight, in small mobile bands. He is planning to use as much cavalry as possible and to follow the rebel bands into the hills with small bands and fight it out with them, man to man. Huerta was keeping the entire federal army together with a ponderous artillery and much infantry and was proceeding only by train.

Already a large part of the federal cavalry has been transferred to the vicinity of the W. R. Hearst ranch, east of Madera, and west of Chihuahua City. It is in that region that a battle is expected in a few days between the rebels under command of Colonel Castenada, chief of staff to Orozco, and the federals.

It is reported in Juarez that the rebels sent from Casas Grandes Saturday to Corralitos and Ojitos have met the federals and that they have been fighting. There is no confirmation of this, but it is considered probable by the rebel leaders.

Gored to Death by Bull.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 29.—Theodore Klousterman, seventy-five years old, who for many years had lived the life of a hermit on a farm east of this city, was gored to death by a bull. His badly mangled body was found lying in a field. It is presumed the bull attacked him as he was crossing the field with some garden produce for a customer.

A MINORITY REPORT AS TO STEEL TRUST

Republican Members of Stanley Committee Heard From.

Washington, July 29.—In a report just made public by Representatives Gardner of Massachusetts and Danforth of New York, Republican members of the Stanley steel committee, the Gary-Perkins plan for the creation of a federal commission to fix the prices of the products of industrial corporations is indorsed. Representatives Gardner and Danforth recommend the enactment of a law under which all interstate corporations would be required to obtain a charter from the federal government before commencing business. Representative Young of Michigan, another Republican member of the Stanley steel committee, makes a report of his own in which he opposes the price fixing doctrine of Judge Gary and George W. Perkins. Messrs. Gardner, Danforth and Young believe in effective governmental regulation of the activities of interstate corporations; Representative Sterling of Illinois, the fourth Republican member of the steel committee, condemns the plan of government price fixing, recommends the enactment of a federal incorporation law, and urges the dissolution of industrial trusts into their integral parts.

Representatives Gardner and Danforth condemn those concerned in the payment of a fee of $62,500,000 to J. P. Morgan & Co. for organizing the United States Steel corporation. They read the corporation a lecture urging it to improve labor conditions in its various shops and factories. They charge that the steel corporation was over-capitalized and that the corporation, through the medium of the so-called Gary dinners, fixes "the prices and the independents follow suit."

PISTOL BATTLE

The Mining Town of Dugger Stirred by Triple Tragedy.

Sullivan, Ind., July 29.—As the result of a free-for-all pistol battle at an ice cream social held in a grove near the mining town of Dugger, about midnight Saturday night, two men were killed, another will die of his wounds and two others seriously hurt.

The dead are: William Shepherd, forty-four years old, and Walter Alsman, thirty-two years old, married.

Thomas Shepherd, sixty-six years old, was shot in the shoulder and right cheek, part of one ear shot off, and badly injured about the head by blows from a rifle stock; will die. Code Burch, twenty-two years old, married, was shot through the left hand and abdomen, and Arista Turpin, twenty-six years old, married, suffered severe scalp wounds and bruises.

Disarmed the Mormons.

Casas Grandes, Mexico, July 29.—The rebels forced the Mormons at this place to give up all their arms and ammunition and looted the stores. The Mormons had declared that they would not submit to being deprived of their arms, but the rebels seemed determined and rather than fight, the Mormons submitted.

Flagman and Engineer Blamed.

MAY ORGANIZE ANOTHER PARTY

Indiana "Drys" Behind an Interesting Movement.

HANLY'S HAT MAY GO IN RING

Story Current at Marion, Stronghold of the Indiana "Dry" Movement, Has It That Former Governor Hanly Believes He Can Win Out in a Sixth Party Fight Against the Entire Gubernatorial Field.

Marion, Ind., July 29.—An interesting rumor is current in this stronghold of the Indiana "dry" movement to the effect that under certain conditions there will be still another new party in the field in Indiana this year, with county local option and ultimate state-wide prohibition as its single slogan and former Governor J. Frank Hanly as its candidate for governor.

It is stated here by persons in close touch with the temperance movement in the state and particularly with the views and purposes of former Governor Hanly, that the latter is holding himself in readiness to accept the nomination for governor at the hands of a second session of last December's omnipartisan convention, and that plans for the reconvening of this convention, in case the approaching Republican state convention fails to meet the expectations of the county local optionists, are already in progress of formation.

During the sessions of the omnipartisan convention at Indianapolis in December Hanly stated in a speech that if the two old parties fail to make platforms and name candidates satisfactory to the temperance people of the state the delegates would return to Indianapolis and put a separate ticket in the field.

It is stated here by those in a position to know that former Governor Hanly firmly believes that he can win on a state ticket composed of Republican, Democratic and Prohibition "drys" and a platform confined to declarations for county local option, woman's suffrage and a constitutional convention with a view to state-wide prohibition.

Hanly and his friends figure, it is said, that the "wet" vote will be split three ways, and that, by uniting the big bulk of the Indiana "dry" vote, the state's most conspicuous advocate of the "dry" cause can be elected in a campaign in which party lines will be inextricably tangled.

THEIR SLOGAN

"We Would Rather Be Right Than Regular," Say Teddy Fans.s

Indianapolis, July 29.—"We Would Rather Be Right Than Regular" is to be the slogan of the state convention of the Progressive party, which will be held here on Thursday. Programs for the convention display the quotation in large type and many signs bearing it are to be in Tomlinson hall.

The convention will be called to order at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. The Second regiment band of Marion will begin a program of popular and patriotic airs for one hour before the opening of the convention. Edwin M. Lee, state chairman of the Progressive party, will call the convention to order, and after the invocation and the reading of the call of the convention, will introduce former Congressman Frederick Landis as temporary chairman, who will deliver the keynote speech. The nomination of candidates will follow the adoption of a platform. The convention will continue throughout the afternoon, and the leaders are hopeful that the entire ticket will have been selected early in the evening. Some predictions are being made that the time consumed by demonstrations will be such that the work cannot be completed during the day. State leaders say that the hall will be filled and that the entire allotment of 1,441 delegates will be in attendance.

Boy Killed by Automobile.

Fort Wayne, Ind., July 29.—Joseph Kintz, nine years old, son of David Kintz, received injuries when struck by an automobile which caused his death two hours later. The automobile was driven by Ralph McKinnie, a demonstrator who lives in Peru. The police exonerated the driver. The victim was a deaf mute and failed to heed warning signals on that account.

Wolves Destroy Live Stock.

Fort Wayne, Ind., July 29.—Armed posses of farmers who have lost live stock by the depredations of what is believed to be a pack of wolves are nightly scouring Steuben and Lagrange counties along the Michigan line in the effort to kill the wolves. Sheep, pigs and young calves have been killed by the marauders.

ANOTHER CHILD SLAIN IN GREATER NEW YORK

Third Crime of This Sort Within Few Weeks.

New York, July 29.—The docks and wharves and tenements near DeGraw street, Brooklyn, at the foot of which the body of eight-year-old Mary Barsuto was found floating on Saturday, are being searched by detectives from the Amity street police station and Brooklyn headquarters. In the child's throat her murderer had jammed a piece of white linen and a bandana handkerchief. The Barsuto girl is the third child to have been murdered in Greater New York within the past two months, and in this, as in that of the killing of six-year-old Sigried Eckstrom of the Bronx, and the more recent murder of Julia Connor, the police find that there is very little to aid them in their hunt for the murderer.

The appearance of the body and the autopsy performed by a coroner's physician indicate that in all probability the child was assaulted and killed but a short time before she was thrown into the black waters that lap the DeGraw docks and piles. There was water in her lungs, and it is probable that she was still breathing when she was thrown in. Mary was last seen playing on the docks at the foot of DeGraw street at noon on Wednesday.

Philippine Governor Ill.

New Bedford, Mass., July 29.—W. Cameron Forbes, governor general of the Philippines, is reported seriously ill on Nashawena island, where he has been spending the summer.

The London dock strikers have angrily repudiated the decision of the strike committee of the Transport Workers' Federation, declaring the strike at an end, and have declared for no surrender to the employers.

ADVANTISTS TO MEET INKOKOMO

Annual Camp Meeting of Indiana Conference Will be Held August 5 to 11.

OVER 100 TENTS WILL BE USED

Vegetarian Meals Only Will be Served—Local Adventists Will be Present.

Seventh-Day Adventists from Indianapolis, Anderson, Lafayette, Muncie, South Bend, Fort Wayne, Idaville, Elwood, Knightstown, Rushville, Newcastle, Sheridan, and other places in this State, to the number of several hundred will attend the annual camp meeting of the Indiana conference of that denomination which will be held in Kokomo, August 5 to 11.

Not only will practically all of the ministers of the Indiana conference attend, but several others will also take a prominent part. Among the leaders in the denomination coming are Pastor W. T. Knox, of Washington, D. C., vice president of the general conference, and Pastor Allen Moon of South Bend, who is the president of the Lake Union conference, which includes the Indiana conference and several others.

The local ministers expected to attend in addition to President Montgomery are W. A. Young and A. L. Miller, of Indianapolis; U. S. Anderson, of Muncie; J. M. Ellis, of Idaville, and E. R. Lauda, of Sulphur Springs. Other conference workers to attend are several licentiates, Bible teachers, instructors at denominational schools, and physicians and nurses at sanitariums conducted by the Adventists.

Over one hundred tents will be pitched for living purposes, in addition to the large pavilion where the main services will be held, the tents for the young people's and children's meetings, the dining tent where only vegetarian meals will be served, the book tent, and the grocery tent.

There are 60 churches in the Indiana conference and practically all, these will be represented at the camp meeting. There are 1,840 Seventh-Day Adventists in Indiana. These people support their ministry by paying a tithe, the receipts from this source last year being $24,022.83. They are also liberal in their free-will offerings for foreign missions, the Indiana conference last year giving $11,653.55, and their contributions for the spread of the gospel in home lands were $6,401.59.

SCORES TANK RIDING HABIT

Former Federation President Declares That Common Practice is Dangerous and Indecent.

AND, TOO, IT'S VERY IMMODEST

Former Head of Motorcycle Association Says That it is Never Safe.

The practice commonly known as "tank riding,"—a method by which some motorcyclists carry two passengers on a motorcycle built for only one passenger—is going to be discouragd and stamped out, if possible, by the Federation of American Motorcyclists.

G. H. Hamilton, president of the F. A. M., has during the last year taken a decided stand against speeding, the open muffler and tank riding, but with the increasing number of riders and the return of the summer season, he has again turned his attention to tank riders.

"If a motorcycle is built for two passengers," says President Hamilton, "then it is perfetly proper for two passengers to ride it. There are two saddles, two sets of handle bars and every provision for the comfort of both pasengers. No one can object to this any more than they could object to carrying two passengers in a two passenger automobile.

"It is dangrous both to the riders and the public—and where the second passenger is a woman, it is often immodest—when two passengers ride a one passenger machine.

"My attention has been called to the practice of some motorcyclists, who, having a one-passenger machine, improvise a seat on the tank or the luggage carrier for their young women friends.

"Such a seat is not stable or secure. And if it is built on the tank in front of the operator, it interferes with the operation of the motorcycle and thus becomes doubly dangerous.

"With an improvised seat there is, of course, no set of handle bars for the second rider to hold. Consequently, the second rider must hold to something else—and very often the operator is selected. Aside from the danger of such an arrangement, it is certainly not to the credit of motorcycling to see a motorcycle going down a street with a woman clinging to an improvised seat over the rear wheel and with one or both of her arms around the man who is operating it.

"It is both dangerous and immodest. And it reflects to the discredit of the great army of motorcyclists who are using and not abusing their machines. The Federation stands for the use of motorcycles—not for their abuse. It opposes speeding the open muffler, and tank riding. It endeavors to have its members take an interest in the appearance of their machines and persons. It stands for courtesy, gentlemany conduct—and all things that should naturally be a part of the most enjoyable of all sports of recreations—motorcycling. Everything that the F. A. M. can do will be done to stop the abuses of motorcycling and to this end it calls upon all of its members to lend their assistance.

PLANTS GETTING PERILOUS.

It is a fact recognized by botanists as beyond dispute that the carnivorous habit among plants is more widespread than it was formerly supposed to be. The specialized sundews (Droseras) are but the advance guard of a large army of species which depend for their existence more or less upon absorption of animal salts through their foliage. There is no gainsaying the statement, recently put forward by more than one scientist, that the tendency to rely upon a carnivorous diet is on the increase. Of course, this is only in a line with the simplest evolutionary principle. It is possible to trace the steps by which the highest types of species, which seize and hold their prey, such as the Venus fly trap (Dionaea) have been evolved from those which merely capture their victims by the use of an ahhesive fluid, such as the fly catcher of Portugal (Drosophyllum). Still lower in the scale are the plants, such as the teasles (Dipsacus) which drown the insects in strange bucket-like contrivances located at the base of the leaves. Flies which may chance to fall into the water are of course drowned and the plant absorbs the nitrogenous elements from their decaying bodies.

It is a startling conception advanced by some scientists that in ages to come these plants may become so advanced in carnivorous tastes as to be a real menace to animal creation. Dreadful indeed must be the sundews and the Dionaeas to their insect victims at the present time. The unfortunate fly which is captured by the leaf of the sundew finds itself held down by strong arms which are able to resist its violent struggles. The largest Drosera on earth at the present time produces leaves which are perhaps nine inches in length. Magnify this plant until the leaves are ten feet in length, and we have an exceedingly formidable plant. Many of the palms and other tropical species have foliage which is much in excess of this measurement, so that the idea of leaves as big as this is not altogether fantastic. To be proportionate, the tentacles could scarcely be less than ten inches in length, and these would be able to grapple with birds of considerable size. We may conceive that the giant sundew would be able to hold out some special inducement for its intended victims to visit the leaves. Probably the bait would be in the form of some sweet-tasting secretion. On alighting, the birds would probably not find the adhesive fluid which the leaves would produce more than slightly annoying. The movements which they would make in an endeavor to free themselves, would be sufficient to give the stimulus to the sensitive tentacles. These would rapidly close in on their prey, and in a few moments escape would be out of the question. Finally, the unfortunate birds would perish miserably, the bodies in their decay yielding to the plant the nitrogenous matter desired.

The butterworts are at the present time innocent-looking plants rather attractive in appearance. These species, as is well known, find their home in boggy tracts, where they spread their foliage on the surface of the ground in the form of a rosette. If the leaves of the butterwort are closely examined, it will be seen that they are thickly covered with two sets of glands, one set of which is plainly visible to the naked eye. This visible set resembles a miniature mushroom, while the other set is microscopic and is formed of eight cells grouped after the manner of a wart or a knob. It is the practice of these glands whenever they come into contact with any object to pour out copiously a mucilaginous fluid, which acts much in the same way as bird lime. Acid secretion is also produced, which aids the leaf in the digestion of the object—supposing that the capture should be an insect. In order to make assurance doubly sure, the edge of the leaf in certain species is seen to curl slowly inward. Now we can imagine that in the very far-away future with which we are dealing, the Pinguicula will develop leaves which will hardly be less than five or six feet in length. These lying along the surface of the ground will make a special appeal to grazing animals.

LITTLE FOSSIL CAMELS

The first fossil camels ever found intact in America are being set up in the Carnegie museum in Pittsburg, and curious little animals they are, being not much larger than greyhounds, with slender legs and long necks. These skeletons were clothed with flesh ages ago, and existed in the Niobrara valley in western Nebraska, where Prof. O. A. Peterson of the Carnegie museum and Dr. F. B. Loomis of Yale university found them. These fossil camels are said to be the remote ancestors of the modern camels and dromedaries of Arabia and Africa, and of the American llamas.

CITY LOTTERY FOR A BRIDE

The city of Smolensk in Russian occasionally holds a municipal lottery, in which the first prize is a girl. Some 5,000 tickets are sold at a ruble each, and the proceeds go to the girl's dowry. If she does not like the man who wins her, and refuses to marry him, she has to give him half the dowry But cases of refusal are rare.

Jewish Gate of Samaria

One of the most interesting and valuable discoveries so far recorded in the field of Biblical archaeology has been the recent unearthing at Samaria in northern Palestine of the palace of a Hebrew king, believed to be the "ivory house" of Ahab. Labels with Hebrew writing, which seem to have been in actual use during the lifetime and perhaps in the households of Omri and Ahab, have also been found, as well as fragments of pottery and other interesting remains. It was in the palace here that Ahab dwelt with Queen Jezebel and where Naboth had his vineyard. Among the ruins many inscriptions have been found containing Biblical names and there is a frequent reference to a vineyard, which is believed may be the vineyard of Naboth. This is the first and only palace of a Hebraw king ever found, and accordingly regarded as unique and of the deepest interest to archaeologists. The picture shows

APPLE YIELD TO BEABOUTNORMAL

Prof. C. G. Woodbury, Secretary of Indiana Apple Show Commission, Estimates Crop.

EXPERT ADVICE TO GROWERS

He Advises Against Overbearing of Trees and Says Fruit Should Be Thinned.

The apple in Indiana always has been a money maker for the man who cares for his trees. The crop of 1911 was above normal in the northern sections but almost nothing in the southern counties. The crop this season is not especially heavy in any section but is general throughout the State, with present prospects for heaviest yield in the southern section. Three that were overburdened last season are resting this season and this is to be expected.

Prof. C. G. Woodbury, secretary of the Indiana Apple Show, which is to be held in Indianapolis, November 13-19, 1912, says: "If you allow your apple trees to over bear this year you can expect an almost complete crop failure next season. This is due to the fact that the fruit buds for next year's crop are now being formed.

"The main object of any organism is to reproduce itself. The apple tree has set an abundance of fruit this season and it exerts every effort to mature all this seed. The result is that all the food material is rushed to the fruit and none is left for the formation of fruit buds. You get a large crop of very small apples this season and none at all next season.

"This overbearing occurred in many northern Indiana orchards last season and explains why many trees are without fruit this year. If the orchardist could only be convinced that he should thin his fruit there would be fewer 'off years.' The trees would not be more regular in their bearing habits, but the fruit obtained would be larger, more perfect and better flavored.

"Indiana has this year about 75 per cent. of a normal yield. A normal yield is generally considered about 75 per cent. of a full crop. this gives Indiana in 1912 about 50 per cent. of a full crop. This apparent shortage in crop was brought on by insect and fungus attack early this spring. The sprays applied were washed off by the heavy rains and the fruit was thus open to attack. The majority of this injured fruit has now fallen and, on trees which received the later sprays, the crop is excellent. While the total crop will only be 75 per cent of the normal crop, the number of barrels of fancy stock will be up to the average."

"Every apple grower in the state should plan to thin his fruit until the apples stand about four or five inches apart. This will produce fancy fruit—such as can win a prize at any show."

Professor Woodbury also suggests that all growers plan to make an exhibit at the 1912 Apple Show. Numerous classes and liberal premiums are offered. There is a place for the single plate, as well as the car lot. This Show is a move to acquaint the nation with the horticultural resources of Indiana. It is a splendid opportunity to get abreast of the times and to see and learn about the latest and best methods of apple growing and marketing.

Farmers' Menace.

Possible opposition to the Republican ticket among the farmers is largely due to advocacy of Canadian reciprocity some months ago, says the Huntington Herald. We heartily sympathized with them in their opposition and refused to advocate it notwithstanding it had the approval of the administration and other Republican statesmen. It was in line with Democratic principles—a step toward free trade. It had the support of the Democrats in congress, the Democratic press and Democratic speakers. Mr. Taft evidently realized his mistake, for after the rejection of the treaty he made no effort to renew negotiations with the Canadian government. Mr. Roosevelt also admits it was a mistake and credits himself with ignorance when he spoke in its advocacy. It is not likely to be heard from again in Republican circles. In fact, Canadian reciprocity is a dead and buried issue among Republicans and the farmers can rest assured there will be no revival of the treaty under Taft.

Neverthless the menace of free trade with Canada is still in evidence Should the Democrats elect Wilson and gain control of both houses of congress this fall, and not only will they demand and enact reciprocity with Canada, but with other nations as well. Their platform, "tariff for revenue" is synonymous with free trade, and the "reciprocity treaties" (so called) furnish them an avenue for securing free trade without openly enacting free trade legislation.

It seems to the Herald that the Republican farmer who opposes the election of the Republican ticket because of a position a year and a half ago on Canadian reciprocity, (a position now wholly abandoned) is pretty short sighted if he votes the Democratic ticket this fall, for he not only votes to open our markets to Canada but to such other nations as the free trade Democracy may favor the world over.

Earth's Waste Power.

It was a great stride from the slow and inartistic horse car to the electric street car. And no sooner had the cities been equipped than ingenuity turned to linking cities and we had the interurban. Naturally inventive genius turned more than ever to the study of electricity and soon we had the wireless. Now comes Tesla with the result of that discovery, the transmission of electricity without loss. This means that all the water power of the earth may be utilized, transformed, so that the factory in the city may be operated by water power as economically as if located at the falls.

Power is now sent from Niagara Falls twenty miles. But it will not be necessary to destroy the Falls, nor is that to be permitted. As there is to be no loss in transmission, distance is not an important consideration.

It is estimated by engineers that Victoria Falls, in Rhodesia, Africa, a mile wide and 400 feet high, has energy to the amount of thirty-five million horse power; more than the total stationary power generated in the United States. The Falls of Iguaza, near where Argentina, Brazil and Paraguay meet, is two miles wide and 210 feet high, with an estimated horsepower of 15,000,000 almost half the stationary power in the United States.

It has been predicted that before the supply of coal had become exhausted some means of utilizing the great forces of nature would be discovered, and that prediction bids fair to be realized. And long before it will be necessary to go to Africa or South America, the great water waste power of the United States will be employed.

Tesla thinks that without doubt, the means of transmitting power without loss of energy will shortly be perfected. And that means that Nicholaih Tesla has some definite ideas to how that will be done.

The Marion Chronicle calls attention to the fact that in 1897, March 4, Grover Cleveland retired from the presidency, making his home at Princeton, N. J., and becoming president of Princeton college. Prof. Wilson came to Princeton college about that time as an instructor and shortly afterwards began the publication of his books on American politics. That he got many of his free trade ideas from Grover Cleveland may be safely assumed. A young man, born and reared in the South, which was opposed to the protection policy because the factories and labor were all in the North, it is easy to understand the influence that made Woodrow Wilson a free trader. And it is not surprising that he took a position hostile to American labor and American industries.

Democrats in Congress are not waiting until after the election in taking issue with their own platform. This is "progressive," since their rule always has been to wait until after getting in. But this is an era of overconfidence in Democratic circles. Congressman Fitzgerald of a New York City district, was reminded by Congressman Henry of Texas that he was out of line with the Baltimore platform in opposing legislation to prevent selling options on the cotton crop. "I decline to withdraw my opposition to the bill," said Mr. Fitzgerald. "I believe it is unwise and improper legislation. A declaration in a platform adopted at Baltimore or elsewhere will not control my action in a legislative capacity when I believe, on the subject of such legislation, that it is beyond the power of Congress." He cited decisions of the supreme court declaring such legislation unconstitutional.

Miss Florence E. Wilson of Spokane, Washington, broke the world's typewriting record a few days ago, by writing 115 words a minute for one hour's work, totalling 7219 words.

A remarkable achievement, indeed, yet as Miss Wilson made 68 errors it is not quite in the line along which typewriting schools should strive to perfect their pupils.

Accuracy in typewriting is better than speed. Nothing annoys a business man more than to find errors which give the impression that he did not know enough to correct them.

Theoretically every business man is supposed to read over the letter his stenographer writes before signing and mailing same. Actually comparatively few do it.

When some distressing blunder is made by the typewriter, it is very apt to go undiscovered, and the man who dictated the letter gets the credit for stupidity.

If young people who are studying typewriting realize at the outset that every mistake is a serious blot on their work, they will acquire a degree of correctness that will make their services doubly attractive to employers.

Theodore Roosevelt laid down the ultimatum. He will decide on the worth of these contests at the Bull Moose national convention. The foundation for the formation of the new party is ostensibly the alleged "steal" at the Chicago convention, but Theodore Roosevelt will not even trust contests in his convention to a national committee. He has engineered national committees before, and he knows the grounds on which he treads. But why shouldn't Mr. Roosevelt decide on such important things? It is his party, it is his national committee, he is slated to be its presidential nominee, he would not have anything to do with it under any other condition, and there you are.

The first fruits of the referendum in Elgin, Illinois, is a vote of 2,550 to 1,674 in favor of Sunday theaters, Elgin has a commission form of government. Some of the theaters were open on Sunday until a few weeks ago, when church workers presented a petition demanding enforcement of an ordinance forbidding them. The municipal commission enforced the ordinance and theater owners got up petitions for a referendum. Now they can open legally.

The Indianapolis Star devotes a column to the Republican bill revising sugar downward, passed by a combination of insurgents and regular Republicans, and then gives Louis Ludlow free sway to explain how inconsequent this sugar revision is anyway. The secret is Pres. Taft intends to sign the bill.

"We Would Rather be Right Than Regular" is to be the slogan of the Bull Moose convention in Indianapolis this week. They have a perfect right to feel that way about it, but they first should be sure that they're right.

It is a strange coincidence that in all the Bull Moose county conventions held Saturday, Theodore Roosevelt was endorsed for President in glowing terms, and Albert J. Beveridge was ditto for governor of Indiana.

One of the alleged New York gangsters says he will turn reformer if allowed to go free, but if he should take it into his head to run for congress he might lose whatever good reputation he already has.

A $33,000,000 river and harber bill may seem big to the taxpayer, but the congressmen know only too well that they can hardly be put across the caucuses for any such paltry sum.

The experiment of running a literary and philosophical review in this country without a well edited base ball column has been thoroughly tried out and found hopeless.

By the time the Rosenthal murderers get a thousand miles away, certain members of the New York police may feel that they can safely hustle around after them.

Tens of thousands of harvest hands are called for in the West and the college boys would be willing to take hold if awnings could be erected over the grain fieds.

Thaw should reflect that brown bread and pork at Matteawan will be much better for his digestion than lobster suppers with chorus girls.

Now that everybody has called everybody else a reactionary, it is time for the dictionary men to get up some new opprobrious epithets.

Why should congress pass any laws when by merely introducing bills they get just as many head lines and no kicks?

Rushville, Ind.
Editor Rushville Republican:

I have been away from Rushville several years, but am still familiar with conditions in Rush county, especially since I keep posted by reading the Republican.

I can not help thinking about the names of the "Bull Moosers" put on the committee in old Rush by rudolph leeds, the Boy Millionaire Editor of Richmond. The chairman of the bunch has had two fat offices at the hands of the Republicans there, and the pension he draws was made possible by this same party which suddenly he finds is not good enough. Another name, an echo from the hilltop, sounds natural, as this same name has been on every ticket put out by the Republicans since the war. I suppose as they could not expect to stay at the public crib for ever, these milkers of the public teat will now try and ruin the old party that has kept them and some of their relations for years, and see if they can get hold in a new party. Isn't it a list of names to cause enthusiasm? With that bunch of prominent leaders the "Moosers" should march on to Victory with a capital V. G.

St. Paul "Flying Squadron" Arrives Here Late in Day.

Eight automobiles, loaded with St. Paul people, stopped in Rushville Friday evening shortly after six o'clock to advertise the St. Paul annual home coming which will be held there August 7 to 10. The automobiles were all decorated with banners and pennants announcing the purpose of the "Flying Squadron." While the members of the party talked home-coming a quartet of colored singers from Shelbyville entertained the people who gathered to hear them.

Eye Troubles

Brief spells of dizziness, pains in the brow and temples come from eyestrain. Glasses correctly fitted—perhaps just to wear while reading, studying, sewing, or other close work may be all that's required for permanent relief.

Taken in time the constant wearing of glasses is avoided. Delay means serious eye trouble later on, expensive and painful operation or the loss of vision.

AMUSEMENTS

The Portola offers for the first picture tonight a Pathe drama entitled "Tis Mother." The picture is said to be a fine drama taken from life. "Her Convict Brother" is the title of a thrilling Kalem drama.

The Princess has a Vitagraph featuring John Burney for the first picture tonight. It is entitled "Diamond Cut Diamond" and is a clever comedy. The other is a Pathe western drama, "The Prospector's Sweetheart."

The menagerie and wild beast exhibit offered by the Sun Brothers' World's Progressive Shows this season is a distinct departure. Here will be seen on exhibition the choicest selections of the zoological creation. They are all exhibited in massive and commodious cages and so arranged that all visitors to the show can get an unobstructed view of them.

Uniformed keepers will be in attendance to explain the different characteristics and habits of the animals. The wild beasts are looked after with tenderest care, both on account of their extraordinary value and the fact that few can be duplicated at any price.

This exhibition is not a collection of wild animals such as are commonly seen in zoological displays. Each is a splendid specimen of its kind and treated with the utmost tenderness and care.

The performing section of the Big Top performance as it is known in show parlance, is all new this season. An imperial program lasting two hours in duration is offered by artists of international reputation, including ring performers, clowns, aerial artists, sensational specialists, performing horses, trained elephants, acrobatic dogs, educated ponies, trained lions and leopards and various other features of human and animal nature, some familiar but most exclusive. The Royal Court Japanese Acrobatique company; the renowned Cevene Troupe; the Electrique De Kamos, the Mexican Juan De Zamora Aerial Troupe, from the City of Mexico; the Great Barnetts; Miss Adele Dutton, the Equestrie Queen, are among the star headliners in this big diversity of good things.

The show will spread its tents on the grounds at West Third street, Thursday, August 22.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Root of All Evil.

The conversation with her old friend had upset Mrs. Ryan. These were grievances she did not talk of to all the world, and the luxury of such plain speaking was paid for by a re-awakened smart. The numb ache of a sorrow was always with her, but her consciousness of it was dulled in the diversion of every day's occupations. Bringing it to the surface this way gave it a new vitality, and when the conversation was over and the visitor gone it refused to subside into its old place.

She went slowly up stairs, hearing the low murmur of voices from the sitting-room where Cornelia and Jack Duffy were still secluded. Even the thought of that satisfactorily-budding romance did not cheer her as it had done earlier in the day. As she had told Cannon, she was not the woman she had been. Old age was coming on her and with it a softening of her iron nature. She wanted her son, her Benjamin, dearly beloved with all the forces of her maturity as his father had been with all the glow of her youth.

In her own room she threw aside the lace curtains, and looking out on the splendor of the afternoon, determined to seek cheer in the open air. Like all Californians she had a belief in the healing beneficence of air and sunlight. As the sun had soothed Berny of her sense of care so now it wooed her enemy also to seek solace in its balm. She rang for the servant and ordered the carriage. A few minutes later, clad in rich enshrouding black, she slowly made her way down stairs and out to the sidewalk where the victoria, glittering in the trim perfection of its appointments and drawn by a pair of well-matched chestnuts, stood at the curb.

The man on the box touched his hat with respectful greeting and the Chinese butler, who had accompanied her down the steps, arranged the rug over her knees and stepped back with the friendly "good-by," which is the politeness of his race. They respected, feared and liked her. Every domestic who had ever worked in Delia Ryan's service from the first "hired girl" of her early Shasta days to the staff that now knew the rigors of her dominion, had found her a just and generous if exacting mistress. She had never been unfair, she had never been unkind. She was one of themselves and she knew how to manage them, how to make them understand that she was master, and that no drones were permitted in her hive; how to make them feel that she had a heart that sympathized with them, not as creatures of an alien class remotely removed from her own, but as fellow beings, having the same passions, griefs and hopes as herself.

As the carriage rolled forward she settled back against the cushioned seat and let her eyes roam over the prospect. It was the heart of the afternoon, still untouched by chill, not a breath stirring. Passing up the long drive which leads to the park, the dust raised by wheels hung ruddy in the air. The long shadows of trees striped the roadway in an irregular black pattern, picked out with spatterings of sunshine, like a spilled, gold liquid. Belts of fragrance, the breaths of flowering shrubs, extended from bushy coppices, and sometimes the keen, acrid odor of the eucalyptus rose on the air. From this lane of entrance the park spread fan-like into a still, gracious pleasance. The rich, golden light slept on level stretches of turf and thick mound-shaped groups of trees. The throb of music—the thin, ethereal music of out-of-doors—swelled and sank; the voices of children rose clear and fine from complicated distances, and once the raucous cry of a peacock split the quietness, seeming to break through the pictorial serenity of the lovely, dreamy scene.

Mrs. Ryan sat without movement, her face set in a sphinx-like profundity of expression. People in passing carriages bowed to her but she did not see them and their salutes went unreturned. Her vision was bent back on scenes of her past so far removed from what made up the present, so different and remote from her life today, that it did not seem as if the same perspective could include two such extremes.

She was thinking this as the carriage swept into the wider reach of the drive near the band stand. Though the music was still throbbing on the air, people were already leaving. Mrs. Ryan let her uninterested glance touch the hatted heads of the women and then move forward to the man who headed the column. He held by the hand a pretty, fair-haired child, who, leaning out from his restraining grasp, walked a little before him, looking back laughingly into his face. Mrs. Ryan's eyes, alighting on his back, became suddenly charged with a fierce fixity of attention. The carriage overhauled him and before he looked up she leaned forward and saw his profile, the brow marked by a frown, the child's gay prattle causing no responsive smile to break the brooding gravity that held his features.

As he felt the vibration of the wheel at his shoulder he started aside and looked up. When he recognized his mother his face reddened, and, with a quick smile, he lifted his hat. Her returning salute was serious, almost tragically somber. Then the victoria swept on, and he and the child, neither for a moment speaking, looked after the bonneted head that soared away before them with a level, forward vibration, like a floating bird, the little parasol held stiffly erect on its jointed handle.

As Mrs. Ryan passed down the long park entrance she thought no more of the past. The sight of her son, heading the file of his wife's relations, his face set in an expression of heavy dejection, scattered her dreams of retrospect with a shattering impact.

The old woman's face was dark with passion, her pale lips set into a tight line. Money! Money might make trouble and bring disappointment, but it would talk to those people. Money was all they were after. Well, they could have it!

She let three days go by before she made the move she had determined on ten minutes after she had passed Dominick. The Wednesday morning following that Sunday she put on her outdoor things and, dispensing with the carriage, went down town on the car to see Bill Cannon.

The Bonanza King's office was on the first floor of a building owned by himself on one of the finest Montgomery street corners. With her approach heralded by a rustling of rich stuffs and a subdued panting, she entered the office. She did not waste time beating about the bush. Their talk lasted nearly an hour. Before the interview ended they had threshed out every aspect of the matter under discussion. There would be no loose ends or slighted details in any piece of work which engaged the attention of this bold and energetic pair of conspirators.

Two days after this momentous combination of her enemies, Berny was sitting in the parlor of her flat, writing a letter. It was three o'clock in the afternoon and she had just dressed herself for her daily jaunt down town.

She did not hear a foot ascending the stairs, till a tap on the door-post of the room made her turn and ejaculate a startled "Come in!" The door that led from the parlor to the hall had been removed, and a bamboo portiere hung in the opening. A large masculine hand thrust apart the hanging strands, and Bill Cannon, hat in hand, confident and yet apologetic, entered the room.

She looked at him inquiringly with something of wariness and distrust in her face.

She remembered him to be a friend of the Ryans', and she had arrived at the stage when any friend of the Ryans' was an enemy of hers. She looked at the old man guardedly, ready for an attack and bracing herself to meet it.

"You'll pardon this intrusion, won't you?" he said in a deep, friendly voice.

She looked up at him and made a slight inclination of her head as she had seen actresses do on the stage. "Won't you sit down, Mr. Cannon?" she added.

"Now, let me make my apologies for coming. In the first place, I'm an old man. We've got a few privileges to compensate us for the loss of so much that's good. Don't you think that's fair, Mrs. Ryan?"

Berny liked him. There was something so easy and affable in his manner, something that made her feel he would never censure her for her past, or, in fact, think about it at all.

"I'm sure I'm very glad you came," she said politely; "any friend of Dominick's is welcome here."

"Will you let me speak frankly, Mrs. Ryan?"

"Yes," said Berny. "Go right ahead."

"Mrs. Ryan will make you a rich woman, independent of any one, the money yours to do with as you like, if you'll consent to the few conditions she exacts."

"What are they?"

"That you will leave your husband for a year and at the end of that time ask him to give you your liberty, he suing you for divorce on the ground of desertion."

"It's a bribe," she said slowly, "a bribe to leave my husband."

"Oh, I wouldn't say that," he answered with a deprecating shrug. "Call it a deal, a settlement. The terms are easy and favorable. You'll not find one of them unjust or unfair. You're to leave the city, going preferably to Chicago or New York, and staying there for the period of desertion. Seven thousand dollars will be set aside for your expenses. At the end of the year you are to write to Dominick telling him you no longer want to live with him and asking him to give you your freedom. After the divorce is granted the sum of fifty thousand dollars will be handed over to you, the one condition being that you will leave the country and go to Europe. It is understood, of course, that the matter's to be kept a secret from Dominick. He must think that you are acting entirely from your own free will. He mustn't guess his mother's had any part in it."

Berny lifted her head and looked at him. The color was now burning in her cheeks and her eyes seemed to hold all the vitality of her rigid face.

"You tell Mrs. Ryan," she said slowly, "that I'll lie dead in my coffin before I'll take her money and leave my husband."

"Well, I'm a patient man, and everything comes to him who waits."

She looked over her shoulder with a slight acid smile.

"Not everything," she said.

"So long," he answered, giving his hat a farewell wave at her. "I've enjoyed meeting you and hope we'll soon meet again in a more friendly way. Hasta Manana, Senora!"

She wheeled so that she faced him and gave a short nod, then watched him as he walked to the door. Here he turned, bowed deeply and respectfully, and passed out into the hall, the bamboo strands of the portiere clashing together behind him. A moment later she heard the bang of the street door.

Her two predominant sensations were rage and triumph. It deepened her detestation of the Ryans, and at the same time gave her a sense of intimacy with them. And it showed her her power. Standing in the middle of the room with her eyes still staring at the now motionless portiere strands, she saw, stretching away into a limitless gilded distance, her negotiations with her husband's family. If their desire to rupture the marriage took them thus far, where might it not take them?

It was not the Ryans alone who wanted to buy her off. It was the Cannons as well. They not only wanted Dominick to get rid of her; they wanted him to get rid of her so that he could marry Rose Cannon. The other girl was behind it all, accounted for the participation of the Bonanza King, accounted probably for the whole move—the pink and white girl in the French clothes who had all her life had everything and now wanted Berny Iverson's husband.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Moonlight Night.

A few nights after this, there was a full moon. Dominick, walking home from the bank, saw it at the end of the street's vista, a large, yellowish-pink disk floating up into the twilight. The evening was warm, like the early summer in other climates; and Dominick, walking slowly and watching the great yellow sphere deepening in color as it swam majestically upward, thought of evenings like this in the past when he had been full of the joy of life and had gone forth in the spirit of love and adventure.

The determination to accept his fate which had been with him on his return from Antelope had of late been shaken by stirrings of rebellion. Uplifted by the thought of his love for a woman hopelessly removed from him, but who would always be a lodestar to worship reverently and to guide him up difficult paths, he had been able to face his domestic tragedy with the high resolution of the martyr. But this exalted condition was hard to maintain in the friction of daily life with Berny.

"I'll Lie Dead in My Coffin Before I'll Take Her Money."

To-night, the period of ill humor seemed over. Berny was not only once again her animated self, she was almost feverishly garrulous.

Fearful of angering her, or, still worse, of arousing her suspicions, Dominick bore her talk with all the fortitude he had, but he rose from the table with every nerve tingling, rasped and galled to the limit of endurance.

He did not come into the den immediately but roamed about, into the parlor, down the passage, and into his own room.

"Aren't you coming into the den?" she called, as she heard him pacing steadily along the passageway.

"No," he called back. "The moonlight's shining in at every window. It makes me restless. I can't feel the sitting still."

She sat on the divan, a paper spread before her face, but her eyes were slanted sidewise, unfaltering in the absorption of her attention. Suddenly she heard a rattling sound which she knew to be from the canes and umbrellas in the hat-rack. She cast away the paper, and, drawing herself to the edge of the divan, peered down the passage. Dominick was standing by the hat-rack, his hat on the back of his head, his hand feeling among the canes.

"You've got your hat on," she called in a high key of surprise. "You're not going out?"

"Yes, I am," he answered, drawing out the cane he wanted. "It's a fine night, and I'm going for a walk."

Outside, Dominick walked slowly, keeping to the smaller and less frequented streets. It was a wonderful night, as still as though the moon had exerted some mesmeric influence upon the earth.

He walked on, skirting the hollow, and moving forward through streets where old houses brooded in overgrown gardens.

That part of California Street which crested the hill was but a few blocks beyond him, and before his mind would acknowledge it, his feet had borne him that way. He thought only to pass the Cannon house, to look at its windows, and see their lights. As it rose before him, a huge, pale mass checkered with shadows, the longing to see it—the outer shell that hid his heart's desire—passed into a keener, concentrated agitation that seemed to press out from his soul like a cry to her.

The porch yawned black behind pillars that in the daytime were painted wood and now looked like temple columns wrought in marble. Dominick's glance, sweeping the lines of yellowed windows, finally rested on this cavern of shadow, and he approached stealthily, as a robber might, his body close to the iron fence. Almost before his eyes had told him, he knew that a woman was standing there, leaning against the balustrade that stretched between the columns. A climbing rose spread in a mottling of darkness, over the wall beside her. Here and there it was starred with the small white faces of blossoms. As the young man drew near she leaned over the balustrade, plucked one of the blossoms, and, slowly shredding the leaves from the stem, stretched out her hand and let them fall, like a languid shower of silver drops, to the grass.

She bent over the balustrade to look at them, and in doing so, her eyes encountered the man below.

BACK GIVES OUT

Plenty of Rushville Readers Have This Experience.

You tax the kidneys—overwork them—

They can't keep up the continual strain.

The back gives out—it aches and pains;

Urinary troubles set in.

Don't wait longer—take Doan's Kidney Pills.

Rushville people tell you how they act.

Samuel A. Brown, 527 W. First St. Rushville, Ind., says: "I cannot speak too highly of Doan's Kidney Pills, for I known from personal experience that they live up to the claims made for them. About three years ago I was suddenly taken with an attack of backache and it steadily grew worse. I could hardly raise my foot from the ground and if I stooped, it really seemed as if my back would break. When someone advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I did so and I was certainly surprised by their promptness in relieving me. In three days I was free from backache and felt better in every way. Since then I have procured Doan's Kidney Pills at F. B. Johnson & Co.'s Drug Store and have seldom been without a supply in the house. Doan's Kidney Pills are worthy of the highest praise."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

HAY FEVER ATTACKS QUICKLY ENDED

Just Try Ely's Cream Balm, A Cleansing, Healing Antiseptic Cream.

Are you half sick for two or three months every summer with Hay Fever—violent sneezing spells, running at the nose, intense itching in the corners of the eyes, pain and soreness in the back of the throat, at nights a stuffed-up feeling in the head and an asthmatic wheezing in the throat and chest? If so, you can get almost instant relief by simply using a cleansing, healing antiseptic Cream called Ely's Cream Balm.

Hay Fever is due to an extremely sensitive condition of the membrane lining the nose and throat. Dust, smoke and certain odors irritate this delicate inside skin, it becomes inflamed, caused a watery discharge from the nose and violent spasms of sneezing.

Ely's Cream Balm will relieve all these distressing symptoms in five minutes' time. It opens up the air passages, soothes, heals and strengthens the weakened, inflamed membranes, restores them to healthy, normal condition, so that you are not subject to Hay Fever attacks.

Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist today. Give it a fair trial, and get your money back if you are not satisfied.

YOUR GRAY HAIRS QUICKLY VANISH

A Harmless Remedy, Made from Garden Sage, Restores Color to Gray Hair.

A feeling of sadness accompanies the discovery of the first gray hairs which unfortunately are looked upon as heralds of advancing age. Gray hair, however handsome it may be, makes a person look old. We all know the advantages of being young. Aside from the good impression a youthful appearance makes on others, simply knowing that you are "looking fit" gives one courage to undertake and accomplish things. So why suffer the handicap of looking old on account of gray hairs, when a simple remedy will give your hair youthful color and beauty in a few days' time?

Most people know that common garden sage acts as a color restorer and scalp tonic as well. Our grandmothers used a "Sage Tea" for keeping their hair dark, soft and luxuriant. In Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy we have an ideal preparation of Sage, combined with Sulphur and other valuable remedies for dandruff, itching scalp and thin, weak hair that is split at the ends or constantly coming out. A few applications of this valuable remedy will bring back the color, and in a short time it will remove every trace of dandruff and greatly improve the growth and appearance of the hair.

Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist today, and notice the difference in your hair after a few days' treatment. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented.

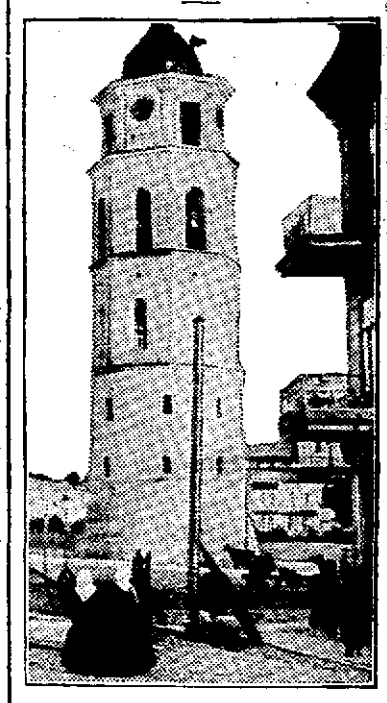
SHEEP OF THE OCEAN

The sheep of the sea are the black fish. If one member of a flock or school of these gets headed into a coral reef, or shoal water, or a granite cliff for that matter, and gets a bit excited about it, he will rush headlong and all his fellows will follow him as though he were leading a Balaklava charge into the jaws of death while all the world looked on and applauded. And when the cohorts are withdrawn from one of these flying squadron charges and the roll is called there are usually great and yawning gaps in the lines of the school, for fishermen take advantage of the folly of the big fish and slaughter them mercilessly when they get helplessly stranded in the shoal water, for this is an occasion of easy money surpassed only by the breaking to pieces of a ship of rich cargo on a rockbound coast. The black fish is a member of the whale family and a sort of vest pocket edition of that great fish, or water mammal. The foolish fish ranges from ten to twenty feet in length, but is very heavy bodied for its inches. It is coarse of fiber and of little value other than as an oil producer, but for this purpose is an unerring source of revenue to the extent of $15 to $20 each. The North Atlantic is the playground of the black fish and the fishing grounds along Cape Cod is the section where they most frequently run amuck.

BELL TOWER OF VILNA



Dating back to the days of very early Christianity, the bell tower of Vilna, Russia, is an edifice of great interest. Despite the fact that Vilna now is a great industrial center, its authorities are careful in the preservation of such antiquities as the bell tower, the old cathedral and other structures.

PRUSSIA'S OLDEST WOMAN

In Prussia today there lives a woman who has completed her one hundred and twenty-fifth birthday. Census officials have been interested in her case for the last 50 years, first on account of her marvelous memory, and more lately because of her longevity. She is now almost blind, and bent fairly in two with rheumatism. She has been transferred, within the last year, to a Catholic institution where she will be cared for, her children having all died, one son recently at the age of eighty-nine. Another was a Jesuit priest, who died in 1910 at the age of one hundred. Her daughter died the very day the mother attained her one hundred and twenty-fifth year, aged ninety-four. She had, in all, ten children, three dying in infancy. Her descendants number nearly three hundred, counting many great-grandchildren. Her married life extended over eighty-five years, and she has been 25 years a widow. She was married in 1801, at the age of fifteen.

Until within five years she remembered perfectly the Napoleonic wars and prominent officials of Prussia consulted her as to happenings which were matters of historical dispute in the vicinity of Germany where she first saw the light. In order to confirm his dates, an Italian historian, ten years ago, traveled to Prussia to interview her at the suggestion of the keeper of archives in Potsdam.

BONES OF PRIMITIVE MEN

Eleven skeletons of primitive men, with foreheads sloping directly back from the eyes, and with two rows of teeth in the front of the upper jaw, have been uncovered in Craigshill, at Ellensburg, Wash. They were found about 20 feet below the surface, 20 feet back from the face of the slope, in a cement rock formation over which was a layer of shale. The rock was perfectly dry.

The jaw bones, which easily break, are so large that they will go around the face of the man of today. The other bones are also much larger than those of the ordinary man. The femur is 20 inches long, indicating, scientists say, a man of 80 inches tall.

J. P. Munson, professor of biology in the state normal school, visited the spot and pronounced them the bones of a primitive man. The teeth in front are worn almost down to the jaw bones, due, Dr. Munson says, to eating uncooked foods and crushing hard substances with the teeth. The sloping skull, he says, shows an extremely low order of intelligence, far earlier than that of the Indians known to the whites.

CRITICISM OF GEN. HITCHCOCK

Postoffice Department Comes in for Condemnation.

THAT "SURPLUS" IS RIDDLED

Declaring That All Computations Which Indicate the Self-Sustaining Operation of the Postoffice Department Overlook Important Items Which Should Be Included in Statement, Methods Are Condemned.

Washington, July 29.—The feature of the formal report filed in the senate by Senator Bourne of Oregon in support of the postoffice appropriation bill he reported to the senate a few days ago as chairman on postoffices and postroads, is condemnation of the accounting methods of the postoffice department.

The senate committee insists that the postoffice department is not self-sustaining, the assertion of the postmaster general to the contrary notwithstanding. Asserting that for many years the postoffice department has annually reported deficits and that recently it has claimed as a mark of credit to Postmaster General Hitchcock's administration that he overcame the deficit and now has a surplus, Senator Bourne's report says:

"We deem it apt to call attention to the fact that all computations which indicate a surplus, overlook several important items which should be included in the financial statement and would be if it were made by any private enterprise."

The committee admits that his scheme for a parcels post by a zone system does not promise rates as low as express rates proposed by the interstate commerce commission, but insists that the proposed parcels post rates are lower than express rates now charged, and suggests the possibility that the rates proposed by the interstate commerce commission will not be imposed.

A COMPROMISE

Republican Progressives and Regulars Get Together on Sugar Bill.

Washington, July 29.—A Republican sugar tariff bill, the first purely Republican revision measure of the present congress, has been adopted in the senate. The Republican progressives, by an ironclad agreement with the regulars, succeeded in passing a tariff reduction bill, which they believe President Taft will sign if it reaches him.

The sugar bill was a compromise between the Lodge plan, indorsed by the regular Republicans, and the Bristow bill, behind which the progressives lined up. It would cut the present sugar duty of $1.90 to $1.60, would abolish the Dutch standard, under which practically no refined sugar can be imported, and would abolish the 7½-cent "refiners' differential," an additional duty on refined sugar, which, it is claimed, has accrued directly to the profit of the sugar refiners.

READY AT LAST

Wilson's Speech of Acceptance Has Been Completed.

Sea Girt, N. J., July 29.—In all likelihood Governor Wilson will come ashore late this afternoon somewhere along the Jersey coast ready for a week of visits and conferences. The speech of acceptance has received its last polishing, and after it has been looked over by the men whom the governor desires to see it, it will go into the hands of the printers. This will be about Wednesday afternoon.

Since the governor has been gone checks and money orders amounting to about $5,000 have been received at Sea Girt from all sections of the country. Some of the money orders were as low as $1 and as high as $500. The $500 is not tainted. A newspaper editor sent it in as the first installment on his popular subscription.

LOBBYISTS INVOLVED IN BOODLE SCANDAL

Latest Developments In Detroit Sensation.

Detroit, Mich., July 29.—In the hands of Prosecuting Attorney Nowski and the Burns operatives now are the secrets of the strongbox of Secretary Schreiter, of the common council, arrested for grafting with ten aldermen. Schreiter had absolutely refused to either open his safe or reveal the combination. Just what underground channels of the alleged plunderbund have been revealed is not publicly known, but it is understood that there was in the box some evidence that points to other affairs in which money was used to influence aldermen than the cases now under investigation.

It is also intimated that a letter from a well-known attorney to Schreiter, in which the former referred to "our mutual interests and their safety" was found. This letter, it is said, may figure in a supplemental investigation involving well-known lobbyists.

CONTESTS TO CLOUD ISSUE

Charles D. Hilles, National Republican Chairman, Says Roosevelt Was Not Sincere.

PROVED BY HIS ASSERTIONS

Third Termer Did Not Seek Equity, he Declares, But Political Advantage.

Charles D. Hilles, formerly secretary to President Taft, and now chairman of the Republican national committee, gave out a statement at the headquarters of the Republican national committee in New York as follows:

"The only possible justification of the avowed efforts of the third term party leaders to induce the Republican electors in at least six States to betray their trust and cast their votes in the electorial college for former President Roosevelt, would be the truth of the charge that President Taft was nominated by the fraudulent seating of a sufficient number of delegates to affect the choice of the national convention.

"There is no truth whatever in that charge. Mr. Roosevelt and his associates know there is no truth in it, but they have been attempting, by vociferation and reiteration, to becloud the fact that they have no proof to offer. They would drown out all attempts to establish the truth by persistent cries of 'thief' and 'fraud.'

"The third term party is the self-confessed sponsor for 160 'fake' contests, by which it attempted to secure fraudulent control of the national convention, and now it has the temerity to ask the American public to believe that in the remaining contests the right was all on its side.

"Of the 238 contests which Mr. Roosevelt ordered to be brought be-political managers voluntarily abandoned 160, and one of his press agents announced that these contests were instituted solely for 'psycological effect' and in order that a table of delegates might not reveal the large majority of legitimately elected delegates instructed for President Taft.

"This gross misrepresentation of the Republican party has attained proportions far greater than a factional quarrel. Were the charges true it would be a national scandal. For that reason, the proper authorities have caused to be prepared a complete review of all the controverted cases, a review which it is the duty of every loyal American to read.

"'When you go seeking equity, do equity.' That is an old maxim of equity law and a just one. Roosevelt, pretending to seek equity from the Republican national committee, sought to induce that committee to unseat at least 160 regularly elected delegates and in their stead to seat Roosevelt delegates whose election he had admitted was fraudulent—admitted it by abandoning the cases either before the national committee or before the time came to present them to the committee on credentials of the convention.

"What would you think of a lawyer who advised his client to bring 238 suits knowing there was justice, if in any, at least in only seventy-eight? Would not such a course prejudice the most just court on earth? But that is precisely what Col. Roosevelt's lawyers did in the case of the Republican national committee. Why?

"They knew the revelation of the fraudulent character of their cases in one contest after another must prejudice the court against them and thus tend to lose any of their cases which possessed merit? Were they fools to pursue such a course? No. They were wise, if unscrupulous, politicians. They came not seeking equity, but political advantage. They knew none of their cases possessed merit. But they sought to deceive the public—not to convince the court.

"They believed that by instituting and pressing many fraudulent contests they could either induce the committee, as a matter of political expediency, to seat some 'fake' contestants rather than reject them all, or compel the committee to reject them all in order that they might deceive the public into believing that steam roller methods had been used. The correctness of this reasoning will be shown by the full statement of the facts.

"Roosevelt is too shrewd a politician, had there been real merit in the contests of the seventy-eight delegates whose title he said was 'plain' ever to have jeopardized them by mixing them up with over 160 contests which he knew and has admitted were pure 'fakes.'" happened—Hartman scored. Mayer was out Carter to Thomas.

Rushville went out in order in their half of the eighth. Richmond with the game tied came back in the ninth and pushed over the winning run. Rolff flew out to Geraghty. Niebuhr was safe on Cook's error and stole second. Lucas hit to third and Chance threw wild, Niebuhr scoring on the overthrow. Roof sacrificed and Mull was out Chance to Thomas.

With the game against them Rushville's efforts went for naught in the last of the ninth. Cook flew out to Mull. Thomas was out to the first basemen and Geraghty flew out to the short stop, ending the game. The score:

NOTES OF THE GAME.

The Waldorfs won, but that's no indication that they have a better team than Rushville. Their three hits were of the scratch variety and the game was won on the flukest kind of playing.

The Richmond team will be the attraction here August 11 and the locals hope to get revenge. The game should attract a large crowd as the teams are pretty evenly matched. The crowd yesterday was cut down by the threatening weather.

"Bob" Anderson is about the best Catcher seen here this year. He won a home with the fans and also with Manager Miabaugh. Anderson played four years in the Ohio State league and recently returned from the Mountain States League. In the days of Jim Geraghty, Anderson caught two games here for Brazil.

Fred Chance is in no way to blame for the defeat. It was unfortunate that he was sent in to play third and he regretted it as badly as did Miabaugh. His place is in the out field.

It is planned to take the team away from the home lot next Sunday. If a game can be aranged the team will play at helbyville.

Jack Stonecipher was out in uniform and acted as official Coacher for the locals. In the excitement of the last few innings Jack's voice was completely drowned out.

Rushville can't win 'em all and yesterday was as good a time as any to drop one. It was the second time this season that Avery has been defeated, which is no mean record.

RHEUMATISM IS MOST PREVALENT

Common Ailment is Truly Common in Indiana in June And Tonsilitis is Second.

PULMONARY TUBERCULOSIS 3rd

More Deaths From External Causes in Country Than in The Crowed Cities.

The monthly Bulletin of the Indiana State Board of Health for June, 1912, shows the total of 4,114 births in the State. Of these births, 2,118 were males; 1,196 females. Colored births, 63. The Southern Sanitary Section shows the highest birth rate 18.7. The Northern Sanitary Section was second with a rate of 18.4, and the Central Sanitary Section was the lowest, 18.1. The highest birth rate was in Dubois county, 30.1; and the lowest rate in Dearborn county, 9.

Total number of deaths in the state for June was 2,365, or a rate of 10.5. The highest death rate was in the Southern Sanitary Section, the rate being 11.5. The Northern Sanitary Section was second with a rate of 10.9, while the lowest death rate, 10.7, was in the Central Sanitary Section. The Central Sanitary Section shows the highest death rate from tuberculosis, measles, influenza, and external causes. The Northern Sanitary Section shows the highest death rate for diphtheria, scarlet fever, pneumona and cancer. The Southern Sanitary Section shows the highest death rate from typhoid fever and infantile paralysis. 1,193 deaths were reported from the rural area, the rate being 9.4, while the cities and towns reported 1,172 deaths, the rate being 12.

Rheumatism was the most prevalent disease, followed closely by tonsilitis, while pulmonary tuberculosis was third and typhoid fourth in order of prevalence.

91 cases of smallpoz were reported from 17 counties with 3 deaths.

Tuberculosis caused 290 deaths, of which 136 were males and 154 females. A marked decrease is shown in the deaths from tuberculosis as compared with June of last year when 339 deaths occurred, and with June of 1909 when 384 deaths occurred from tuberculosis. Even with this decrease in the death rate from tuberculosis, 189 orphans were left by the death of one or both parents from this disease.

Pneumonia deaths numbered 75.

153 cases of typhoid fever reported from 49 counties with 29 deaths.

93 cases of diphtheria reported from 27 counties with 7 deaths.

146 cases of scarlet fever in 33 counties with 3 deaths.

Deaths from external causes numbered 210 of which 109 occurred in the country and 101 in the cities. Of this number 149 were accidental deaths.

FUNERAL TODAY.

The funeral services of George W. Morgan, age 63, who died at his home in Spiceland Thursday night, were held at the late residence this afternoon at two o'clock, with the Rev. Alice Lawrence in charge. Burial was made in Sugar Grove cemetery. He is survived by his widow, two brothers, Lewis and Jessie and one sister, Mrs. Walker, the brothers and sister living in North Carolina.

Chautauqua Notes

(By J. H. Scholl.)

The ninth annual Rush county chautauqua will open next Sunday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock. The program will be run on schedule time and those who attend will have the privilege of hearing the attractions at the time scheduled. A few minutes rest will be given between the exercises when several take place. The Bertha Wooden Concert Company will give a forty-five minutes program at 2:30 and at 7:30 Sunday. Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, the great evangelist, will lecture at 3:15 and at 8:15.

The program this year is the best ever offered here. It costs more money, but the price for adult season tickets remains the same, $1.50, if bought of the guarantors. After August 1, the Chautauqua Association will sell tickets at $2.00. The price of children's tickets has been placed at 75 cents for children from 8 to 12 years inclusive. All over that age will buy adult tickets. This is the custom with chautauquas throughout the country.

The officers, directors, and guarantors are working faithfully and shouldering the financial burdens without any remuneration at all. All of them buy tickets for their own use. Let everybody get a ticket and help to make the 1912 session a record breaker in attendance.

Get a program at Wolcott's drug store. In it you will find a list of guarantors who have tickets for sale. Some of the guarantors have sold their allotment of tickets. If you have any difficulty of locating some tickets, call up J. H. Scholl, secretary, who has a list of those yet having tickets to sell.

Scout Commissioner W. E. Hopkins of Chicago writes, "From the information in your letters, I gather that my work with you will be one of delightful service and I am glad of the opportunity." Mr. Hopkins will meet the boys from the different scout camps at an early meeting on Monday.

The Coliseum is newly painted and makes an attractive appearance.

Mrs. Cornelia Lyons will again have the refreshment stand.

President F. E. Wolcott will open the chautauqua at 2:15 sharp.

The advertising committee has done fine work in scattering literature and window cards over the county.
